SATURDAY MAY 16, 2026
WEST FREINDSHIP, PA
JUDGE: JAN DYKEMA

A century of anything existing is a wonder. A dog club? A miracle indeed. Huge congratulations to the BTCP for holding what I will assume to be a record or as close to it as possible. I am honored that you chose me to be a part of the celebration and success. Thank you. And heres to another 100 years!

Little red fireplug of a dog. As the comment suggests he is a brilliant shade of crimson with white markings, very flashy. He is a cobby style. Lower on leg with solid round bone and a straight front. Tight feet and compact toes. Short backed with well turned stifles and short hocks. Solid on the move in all directions. Jaunty and a bit of a roll. His head is packed and full with enough turn. Shoulder is a bit upright making his neck appear a bit shorter than desired. But full of type.

Brindle and white that lives up to his name. What a clown. Enough substance for size and plenty in the bone department. More up on leg that the winner but not "terrier" style. Lovely, filled head with a dramatic profile and wicked eye. Moved with drive and held his topline.

Full bodied brindle and white. Young with all the exuberance we expect from teenage bullies. His hander did an admirable job piloting this boy in the ring. He impresses at first glance with this lovely round bone and substance and neat, tight feet with good width of fore chest in between those tree trunk legs. Head is fully turned over and packed up to under the eyes which are tiny and slanted. Very nice on a colored dog. Ears on top giving requisite all over type. Short back leading to strong quarters and well-turned stifles. He moved very well in all directions when you could see him go around! He won toady on a very strong group of make colored specials. All of them could win on any given day which made my job both difficult and pleasurable.

Tidy brindle and white feminine beauty. She showed like a bomb for her handler. Head is fat and filled if maybe a bit short. Loved her exquisite slanty expression. Wonderful reach of neck leading into a well laid shoulder and short back. Moved on small cat toes with plenty of bone for size and straight front. Smooth around the ring and on the up and back.

Dark, rich brindle dog with a head that is exemplary in its egg shape. Totally filled and packed up to his well-shaped eyes and smallish ears. Full white blaze enhances this quality. Bite off. Nice round bone in front. Tidy, tight feet. Short back with smooth topline. Well turned stifle with more muscle than the last time I judged him, creating much improved rear movement with plenty of drive. Down and back true coming and going His handler in tune with him and he gives her a nice performance.

Lightish red bitch that my notes say is "correct in so many ways". Long head with gentle profile and enough fill. Good expression and tiny ears. She moves with style and grace and loads of strength in all directions. Excellent body shape with a wonderfully laid should assembly. Nice wide front with tight feet and well turned stifles. Moved as made with smooth easy strides POWERHOUSE of a male bull terrier. Charging into the ring like it was all his. And he knew it. Standing on tightly packed toes with upright pasterns supporting straight legs with large round bone. In between is a wide fore chest. Shortest of backs which made his shoulder not as laid as some but still good enough. Smooth transition from shoulder to back to loin with a well-rounded croup and tail set. What made him the winner in a group of lovely specimens? Oh that head. Side view is arced and turned perfectly to the tip of his nose. Fully packed muzzle up to the eyes. In fact, does he have eyes? Yes, he does, the tiniest of slanted little triangular slits giving him a glint of mischievousness and that expression we all strive to breed. Ears small enough and used well. Moved parallel coming and going. Side view holding his topline. Gave his handler a challenge and she was up to it. Best of Breed on his many virtues and type galore.

Elegance with strength. Gorgeous body shape. Sweeps and curves galore but with plenty of bone and substance for size. An outline that is every close to the breed standard. Her hard if graced with a tiny tiny eye and fill both under and over. Side profile is glorious from the top of her head to the tip of her roman finished black nose. Moved around the ring like a dancer even giving a bit of a prance at the end. Tough choice for BOV but in the end whites prevailed today

A lovely specimen of a feminine bull terrier that I have critiqued in the past. Two brindle eye patches make her head very eye catching. That head is filled and turned, and the eye has a keen expression. Bone is just right for size, and she sports a nice straight front. From the side she is a picture of an animal in excellent condition. Very nice tuck up and spring of rib. Moved with the grace of an athlete. Always handled to perfection.

Thank you to the owners and breeders of the "littles" for inviting me to judge their show in conjunction with the Bull Terrier Club of Philadelphia's centennial. It was a pleasure to have such quality exhibits and to be a part of a group that exhibits such wonderful sportsmanship like conduct. Although the mini club has not yet reached the same milestone, I predict it will. The trophies were gorgeous and the cuisine delicious. The dogs were the stars of the show and each one brought something good to the table. Onward to 100!!!!

His name is correct. What a boy. This flashy well marked brindle and white stole the show for me. Long and filled up head is exemplary and his eye is glinty. Head is topped by nice pert and tiny ears pointing upward. Body shape is compact. Small in stature. Wonderful broad fore chest. Nice Turn of stifle. Moved well when he did. A glimpse here and there was what we saw. His handler did a super job holding down his bully exuberance. Truly he pressed very hard for BOB. I am sure it is in his future many times over. Best of Winners on his extreme virtue and correctness.

Another very well marked brindle. Has many of the attributes of the winner. A head that is super packed and filled and is on the shorter side. Short back. Movement was excellent with notable drive from the side. Only reserve today on shorter head, a bit less bone and not quite the should layback as the winner.

Brindle and white pushing the envelope on size but also very typey. To me she has the look of a bull terrier which is what I assume a miniature version to be. Requisite nicely filled up head with a perfect bite and good expression. Profile is turned and has a nice roman finish. Good shoulder. Back could be a tad shorter. Well-turned stifle and short hocks. Moved with spring and jaunt holding topline. Well handled.

Tiger striped solid rich brindle cutie with some very desirable attributes. Lovely bone for size (small!!!) and straight front with nice compact toes and upright pasterns. Head has fill and is gently turned. Developing a nice fore chest. Rear is well muscled and she moves with plenty of drive from the rear. Good tail set. A bit more rise over the loin would enhance her topline. Handled so well.

Dark brindle and white dog that gives his handler a different challenge than most. When he is on he is on but he has his moments of saying nah, not today. Today he used himself just enough to take him to the top. He has a lovely temperament Sweet as they come. Comparing him to the standard he hits most of the highlights. Packed up head that is also long. His expression is mischievous and his eye is tight and triangular. Little ears right on top. Love his make and shape. So tidy and compact. Plenty of bone and substance and short backed. Moved as made. Glimpses of the jaunt and enough to take him to BOB today.

A stunner of a red and white. I was spoiled for choice today. A dog with masses of bone and looked very square and compact. Wide head with fill aplenty. Good expression and ears on top. Could use a better layback of shoulder. The shortest of backs. He pushed hard for BOB and was handled like a pro. Another one that tempted me which is always a good thing.

Dark brindle and white showstopper. Petite and flashy. Nicely filled head with a gentle curve and tight eye. Small erect ears well set. Where she excels above all others is in her movement which of course means she is well constructed. To my eye she moves perfectly (or as close as it gets) in every direction. Her handler knows what pace is best for her and she floats around the ring. Totally parallel coming and going. Solid topline from the side with a rear that drives and a front that reaches. Like silk in an iron glove.
